

NUCHU

Planning Our Vision

Building on the History, Culture, and Resiliency of Ute People

Between 2015 and 2023, the UMUT generated over $140M in grants following its first ever Native National Partnership Retreat. In January, 2023, Colorado Health Foundation awarded the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe a grant to conduct its second Native National Partnership retreat called

NUCHU: PLANNING OUR VISION

Building on the History, Culture and Resiliency of Ute People

We are working with the US Department of Health and Human Services (Region 8), as well as US Department of Agriculture and other federal, state, and private funding agencies to plan and coordinate the high impact event.

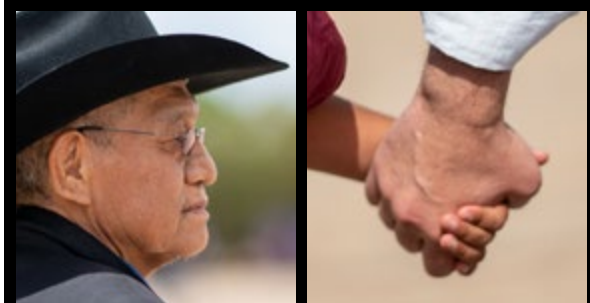

We invite you to join us as a partner to plan eight or more major capital projects to complete between 2023 and 2025.

TWO MOONS

Following the same model as we dreamed, planned and executed in 2015 at our first ever Native National Partnership Retreat, called WALKING IN OUR MOCCASINS, the retreat will begin with two days of strategic planning with Tribal leaders, consultants, and community partners working through a process to prioritize 6-8 projects that focus on the Tribe's greatest needs. On the third day of the retreat, federal, state, and private funding partners will be invited to join the Tribe as partners to refine the solutions and identify potential resources to implement the following projects:

- ▶ Sober/Assisted Living Housing
- ▶ K-16 Educational Campus
- ▶ Economic Development
- ▶ Grocery Store/Workforce Innovation
- ▶ Housing Construction and Factory
- ▶ Housing Rehabilitation
- ▶ IHS Facility Expansion/Mógúán
- ▶ Renewable Energy
- ▶ Water/Wastewater Infrastructure
- ▶ UMUT Road Improvements

CONSULTANTS

REINER LOMB is President at BoomerangCoach, and senior partner at Blue Earth Network, located in Atlanta, Georgia. An Executive/Career and Leadership Coach and author, Reiner combines his passion for developing people through coaching with his extensive experience in leading businesses and worldwide teams in Fortune 500 organizations in a wide range of business scenarios, including start-up, turnaround, fast growth and merger and acquisition situations. Reiner's clients appreciate his international business management and cross-cultural leadership experience, both in the U.S. and in Germany, because understanding a client's cultural context is critical for successful coaching. While Reiner's primary focus is on helping clients achieve results, the foundation of his approach lies in identifying and integrating the client's needs for personal and professional growth. In situations where clients are stuck, he helps them shift the way they see a situation to create new possibilities for action. Typically, client needs range widely from identifying, learning, and sustaining new leadership behaviors, to helping teams and organizations achieve better performance, to finding proactive ways for individuals to address career transitions or life changes. Based on his many years of experience in large, global organizations, and especially through his leadership development work at Hewlett-Packard and in his own coaching firm, BoomerangCoach, Reiner understands that leaders and employees are most engaged and successful when they can develop a shared vision that aligns their individual purposes with the broader mission of the organization. Clients will also benefit from Reiner's education and expertise in sustainability and his many years as a community organizer.

KARINA BRANSON (graphical facilitator) is a visual facilitator, founder, and owner of ConverSketch where she uses hand-drawn images and text to reflect and distill the key ideas as graphic recording charts. With a master's degree in science communication, Karina's scientific training and an innate ability to connect with people across cultures creates a unique blend of intelligences that enable her to synthesize and creatively capture meaningful content. She has facilitated and supported collaborative strategic planning, community engagement, innovative brainstorming and critical systems thinking to help groups move forward and into action. She has worked across academic, corporate, governmental, and non-profit sectors. Her clients are local and international, including Adobe, Cisco Systems, International Science Council, Future Earth, the National Security Agency, the United Nations University; Arizona State University, the National Park Service, the US Forest Service, the City of Fort Collins, The Center for Public Deliberation, and others.
